

Communicating with the School Board

ISD 690 understands the value of input from stakeholders in the school district, including students, parents, staff, and community members. As elected representatives, they are challenged with representing the school district's stakeholder concerns, direction, and interests about our district's efforts.

The School Board delegated the administration and management of ISD 690 to the superintendent. To ensure the effective administration of schools, proper line of authority, and prompt attention to concerns, you are encouraged to initially refer non-policy issues or concerns about an individual or student through the following channels:

- Classroom issues should first be directed to the classroom teacher.
- School issues should first be directed to the school principal.
- District issues should be directed to the administrator responsible for the program or service involved.
- Operational or management issues are best directed to the school personnel closest to the area of concern.

Attend a School Board Meeting
