There are numerous LGBTQ+ and other support resources available here.

Have you been a victim of someone posting online a nude, partially nude, or sexually explicit photo or video that was taken before you were age 18, or is someone trying to financially or emotionally “blackmail” you with such? “Take It Down” can help you, and help get it removed. Here is information about “Take It Down”...

Take It Down is one step you can take to help remove online nude, partially nude, or sexually explicit photos and videos taken before you were 18. If you believe pictures have been or will be shared online, you can use this service. You must have the image or video on your device.

Q. Will someone be looking at my image or video as part of this service?

No, your image or video will remain on your device and will not be submitted as part of this process. The unique hash that was created from your image or video will be added to NCMEC’s hash list that will be available to online platforms.

Q. What do I do if someone is threatening to spread my image?

First, you should know that help is out there and you are not alone. NCMEC operates the CyberTipline, an online reporting system for all types of online child sexual exploitation. If someone is threatening to spread your nude image or blackmailing you with it, you should create a CyberTipline report, even if you’ve already used this service to scan your image or video and submit a hash. You can make a report at www.cybertipline.org or by calling 1-800-THE-LOST (1-800-843-5678). FAQs at this link.
