POSITIVE BEHAVIORAL INTERVENTIONS & SUPPORTS

What is PBS? Positive Behavior Support is all about creating a safe and respectful school environment where everyone can thrive. It's about building a positive school culture that supports each and every one of you! Teaching students PBIS rules equips them with valuable life skills, helps prevent problem behavior, and supports their academic success while promoting a culture of inclusion and equity. Creating a positive and inclusive school environment benefits everyone—students, teachers, and parents alike. PBS is not just about reducing problem behaviors; it's about nurturing the social and emotional well-being of our students. When they feel safe, supported, and empowered, they are more likely to excel academically and make the most of their educational journey.

Throughout our PBS Training Day, our students were taught our rules and expectations during assemblies, in the lunch room, during recess, in the hallway, when going to the nurse, using the restroom, and using our water refill stations. Students earn positive DOJO points when they follow these expectations and lose DOJO points when they don't. Students who have an 85% positive DOJO percentage at the end of each nine weeks will be able to attend our PBS reward event. More information will be shared soon to help parents see their child's DOJO percentages to help them meet their goal of 85%.
