Words of Wisdom from our Principal

When I was in high school back in.....well, a few years ago, I am sure that students bullied other students, but I don't remember it being as prevalent as this egregious issue is today. The inventions of the internet, social media, and cell phones have caused this issue to intensify over the years. In high school, we see this often, and we also see how it affects our students.

October is national Anti-Bullying Month. We are going to spend some extra time with our students this month to remind them how important it is to create a culture where this behavior is non-existent. The victims are obviously affected, but those who bully often have deep-seeded issues which need to be addressed.

As parents, please take the time this month to talk to your child about the importance of treating all other students with respect and dignity. We have a diverse group of students who should be told every day how special and important they are, and that they have a purpose at SHS. We may be diverse, but we are all human beings who deserve to be treated as such.

Have a great October.

SHS Priorities

Safety

At SHS, it is critical to work together to provide a safe environment for every student. Safety includes physical, mental, and emotional security.

Learning

At SHS, learning at high levels is required for all learners. We work collaboratively to provide academic support that promotes our students and their abilities.

Equity

At SHS, our strategies aim to meet every learner's individual needs. We believe in helping our students, one skill at a time..
