

Return-to-School Plan 2022/2023

Our goal at the Garden Valley School District is to open the 2021/2022 school year face-to-face and provide in-person instruction for the entire school year. There is an understanding that we cannot guarantee social distancing, and we will not require face masks unless we are mandated or ordered to do so. We implemented multiple measures in response to COVID19 during the prior school year in order to minimize the spread of the virus, and to assist us with meeting our goal of remaining in school. We will continue with many of these measures during the 2021/2022 school year. As situations change, this plan is subject to change. We will continue to incorporate, where feasible, suggestions from the CDC, the Central Health District and the Idaho Department of Education. This will be a fluid plan that will be reviewed and revised on a regular basis. The Superintendent and district leaders will review the plan at a minimum every six months, make revisions as necessary, and present it to the board of trustees for approval. The district will communicate with the Idaho Department of Education and other agencies when needs arise requiring assistance. We will continue a strong and dedicated focus on our goal to provide a high quality education to the students of the Garden Valley School District.
