OUR COMMUNITY

The Passaic County Technical Vocational High School District is a diverse career and technical education (CTE) high school community of two distinct high schools located on a scenic 55-acre campus in Wayne, New Jersey. As the largest high school district in the state, it serves over 4,800 students from the sixteen sending municipalities throughout Passaic County. In addition to rigorous academics and a comprehensive high school curriculum, our advanced CTE programs are designed to meet current industry trends and the needs of the global market. Each year, the district receives over 4,000 applications for the opportunity to enter the freshmen class of 1,200 students, who are selected through a highly competitive application and admissions process. The district has an active Education Foundation which provides student scholarships and teacher grants for academic enrichment.

OUR SCHOOL

Passaic County Technical Institute is the largest high school in NJ and serves grades 9-12 with an enrollment of approximately 3500 students. The institution has a wide range of facilities that combines a rigorous academic & college-prep curricula with valuable career and technical education (CTE) programs at the forefront of technology and career training. Students receive a college like experience in high school. Over 450 faculty members deliver the diverse curricula of over 200 courses and career areas. With 14 CTE programs to choose from, students select the career area of their choice in programs. The school offers advance placement and honors courses and a wide range of academic electives. The PCTI campus includes a new state of the art Biotechnology Innovation Center housing the DNA Learning Center, the first of its kind in New Jersey. Science laboratories are equipped with comprehensive research equipment; finance students can work at the on-campus full-service bank; and culinary arts students learn life-long skills in the active culinary classroom of the award-winning campus restaurant, “Chez Technique.” Large and diverse extracurricular activities provide student involvement in various service, business, art, art, and honor organizations and participation in a wide range of championship athletics for every season.
